But that " no b'long my pidgin" is an old and annoting cry with servants here, and always affords a pretext for their "cheek." There is no doubt, however, that a great deal of the unpleasantness which arises between the Europeans and the natives in their employ results from the foreigner's own line of conduct, and the manner in which he treats his servants. When the latter are annoyed, as no doubt they often are-and they are human beings after all-they find they cannot resent an injury actively, and they do so in passive impudence. But where consideration is shown them, they are not unmindful The Chinese, when well but firmly treated, make, perhaps, the very best of servants, and are, on the whole, seldom ungrateful. It would be well if some of those who not unfrequently act towards their servants as if they were little better than dogs would remember this. We should then, possibly, mest with less impudence from

The fashion of publishing novels in newspapers is spreading. Colonel Mendows Taylor, C.S.I., author of "Sceta," "Lara," has begun his new story, "A Noble Queen," in the Week's News, a twopenny Saurday paper, published by Messre. H. S. King and Co. On the same day, Jan. 30th, Mr. B. L. Furjeon, not satisfied with distributing a new serial to Temple Bar, began, in the Birmingham Morning News, as original tale of Australian life, entitled "At the Sign of the Silver Flagon." The meeting of the London and Scottish Literary Institute, to commemorate the 116th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, was postponed, as a mark of respect to her Majesty in consequence of the serious illness of Prince Leopold. Mr. Fortesone Harrison, M.P., made this suggestion to the members of the Institute and it was seconded by Mr. Blanchard Jerrold and carried unanimously. It is intended to hold a festival, on an extended scale, in the course of the ensuing season. The Daily Telegraph states that the Queen has been pleased, on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, to grant a pension of $200 a year to Mr. Wood, in recognition of his labours at Epheans and the distinguished service rendered by him to science and history by the discovery of the site of the Temple of Diana and by the acquisition for the British Museum of a most valuable collection of sculptures, architectural marbles, and Greek and Roman inscriptions, in obtaining which results his On Shanghali health has suffered permanent injury.

A collection of the works in landscape of Mr John Linnell, sen, has been opened in Pall mall Mr. E. F. But Mr. White has hardly afforded the public a means of doing this, as out of the sisteen paintings of Linnell's sollection there is only one, and that an uniteportant one, belongs to that early period of his work which many regard with most affection. In the five new works painted expressly for this exhibition, there is in each the same scheme of colour-cool sky, hot, red-hot foreground, and very much speckled trees. Whether it is noon or eve, or early morning, baytime or burvest the same hotred tone pervades the whole of the front portion of the picture; and studies Mr. Linnell's knowledge of cloud-form is intimate, yet his colour is always forced and

OPERA ON SUNDAY-EVENINGS: A correspondent writes to the editor of the World, saying 'As England is now the only European state in which theatres are closed on Sunday (all large capitals throughout the world, I may add, have Sunday-evening theatrical performances), I may be permitted, perhaps, to inquire whether she ought not to follow the example of her American cousins P and I would also ask what barm, if any, would result from her doing so ! A singular proof can be given that all Englishmen do not object to Sunday. evening performances, as when travelling on Mr. William Cullen Bryant, the poet and the Continent they form a very important portion of the andience. The editor answers as follows :- "The experiment has, we believe, proved a failure in New York; and we carnestly trust it will nover be attempted here."

THE GOLDEN GRAVE. The following is a version of an old Irich ballad, whi (the version) was written in 1885, by L. E. L. (M) Landon). It was lately discovered and printed in Eug land, as one of Miss Landon's choicest productions:-

He aleeps within his lonely grave Upon the lonely hill, There sweeps the wind-there swells the wave, All other sounds were still. "And strange and mournfully sound they: Each sceme a funeral cry. O'er life that long has passed away,

O'er ages long gone by. One winged minstrel's left to sing O'er him who lies beneath-The humming bee, that seeks in Spring Its honey from the heath. It is the sole familiar sound That ever rises there ;

For silent is the haunted ground,

And silent is the nir. There never comes the merrier bird-There never bounds the deer: But during night strange sounds are heard, The day may never hear; For there the shrouded Banshee stands,

Scarce seen smil the gloom, And wrings her dim and shadowy hands, And chants her song of doom. Soven pillars, gray with time and moss, On dark Sleive Monard meet; They stand to tell a nation's loss-A king is at their feet. A lofty mount denotes the place Where sleeps, in slumber cold

The giant kings of old, There Golinh eleeps-the golden band About his head is bound; His javelin in his red right hand, His feet upon his hound, And twice three golden rings are placed

The smallest would go round the waist

The mighty of a mighty race-

Upon that band of fear

Of any maiden here. The plates of gold are on his breast, And gold doth bind him round; A king, he taketh kingly rest Beneath that royal mound. But wealth no more the mountain fills. As in the days of yore. Gone are those days : the wave distils.

Its liquid gold to more, The days of yore-still let my harp Their memories repeat-The days when every sword was sharp, And every song was sweet. The warrior slumbers on the hill ; The stronger rules the plain : Glory and gold are gone; but still They live in song again.

YOUNG KNOWLEDGE.

A lady, teaching her little daughter, four years old, pointed to something in a book, and asked :- "What is that, my dear?"-"Why, don't you know?" inquired the child,-" Yes," said the mother, "but I wish to find out if you know "-" Well," responded the little one, "I do know."-" Tell then, if you please," said the lady.-" Why. no," insisted the little miss, "you know what it is, and I know what it is, and there is no need of saying anything more about it!"

Nor is it at all remarkable that she should sometimes succumb to the first young fellow who makes overtures to her, and, occasionally, lead him on to believe that not only is he very much in love with her, but that she is also very much in love with him, a belief which, in most cases, there are no opportunities of shaking until it is too late. Damsels who are unduly eager to get married, expose themselves to serious danger in addition to that indicated. They run a good chance of finding themselves jilted, or of fancying that ed towards women who show a marked too much to the claims of their stomachs in preference for them; but, as a rule, they value most that which there is most difficulty in getting. Indeed, in many cases it is the pursuit of a prize which renders it attractive rather than any particular merit of the prize itself. Thus, though damsels may, in their eagerness to get married, draw men on to a certain stage, the chances are that the latter will shrink back before taking the last, irrevocable step, and leave the damsels objects of ridicule and compassion to those who are acquainted with what has transpired. If these latter were less wishful of getting

THE VICTIMIZED MUFF. an extent of $20.000. Poor human nature is proverbially weak. and hence it has ever been the butt of cynics and satirists. But its weakness is often counteracted by its selfishness, and thus most men and women manage to go through the world more comfortably than might be expeciel. At any rate, most of them are not in the habit of doing themselves serious injury at the dictates of charity. The majority of these who come to grief owe their downfall to more respectable causes than that of having entertained an imprudent desire to they have been jilted, which amounts to the assist their fellow men. They have yielded the matter of cating and drinking; or they have recklessly clutched at a rotten branch of the tree of prosperity; or they have taken care not to imperil their constitutions by working too hard and by going without a certain amount of relaxation. So a cynic is not able to say that they are fools because they are generous. Still there are a great many persons who injure themselves. sometimes to the extent of complete ruination, at the instance of their neighbours.
